Global Public Health Internship: Long Term
Six Months Starting November 2010 or Flexible

Organization
The Alliance for the Prudent Use of Antibiotics (APUA) is a global public health organization dedicated to improving antimicrobial access and use and controlling antimicrobial resistance. Founded in 1981 and located on the Tufts Medical School Campus in Boston, APUA conducts its public health research and education programs in conjunction with affiliated chapters in over 60 countries and leading national and international health organizations.

The APUA internship program is intended to offer qualified applicants enjoyable and unique learning experiences concerning nonprofit administration and public health programs at the national and international level.

Internship Responsibilities/Duties
General project administration and support; background research and writing assistance with technical reports and policy briefs; grant proposal research and drafts; online research, literature reviews, and data compilation; maintenance of records and files; database maintenance; other independent research or administrative duties as assigned.

Support in development; grant writing; meeting coordination, and other administrative activities

Assist with research and education projects, literature reviews; data compilation and preparation of articles on scientific and public health topics.

Development of web materials, social media, and production of APUA newsletters.

Support APUA’s public policy advocacy at national and global levels

Minimum Requirement:
BA Required; Masters and or post Masters work experience preferred.

35 hours per week for this 5-6-month internship program

Salary:
Stipend: APUA offers interns a stipend of $1,000/month. Other benefits such as health insurance or vacation time are not provided with the internship.